

Asian Neuropsychological Association Mentorship Program

The Asian Neuropsychological Association (ANA) Education Subcommittee seeks to counter the underrepresentation of Asian individuals in the field of neuropsychology by providing education and mentorship to the next generation of neuropsychologists (e.g., graduate students, externs, interns, and postdoctoral fellows).

We aim to provide a platform where trainees may:

- form a supportive relationship with a mentor who shares cultural experience as a person of color in the field and gain guidance with issues related to identity and intersectionality,
- learn from more experienced neuropsychologists to develop competence working with and/or assessing Asians and other diverse populations, and/or
- receive support from and collaborate with a mentor on various projects relevant to research and/or clinical practice.

The ANA mentorship program will match mentors and mentees based on their respective interests and goals (e.g., professional development, issues related to identity and intersectionality, cultural competencies/awareness for Asian-language assessments, social justice-related topics, research).

You and your mentor will discuss specific goals for the mentorship, communication method and frequency, duration of the mentorship relationship, and other expectations. The Education Committee will check in quarterly with you and your mentor separately regarding progress towards the mentorship goals, as well as assist with making adjustments if needed.

If you are an ANA member and interested in becoming a mentee, please complete the following questions in order to help us make appropriate matches.
